

AIMS AND SCOPE

MEDIC.RO

Affiliation: National Society of Family Medicine

In order to increase the scientific standards of the journal, special attention was paid to the improvement of the quality of the published materials. All articles, structured in several sections (general articles, case studies, case presentations) are published in Romanian.

A team of reputable medical professionals in the field of Family Medicine/General Practice is involved in a rigorous peer review process that complies with international ethics and quality rules in the academic world.

Increasing the visibility of the Medic.ro is achieved not only through the exchange of articles with other publications and the collaboration with similar national and international bodies, but also through the dedicated website where the latest published articles are posted, offering the opportunity to be informed in real time.

Through its work, Medic.ro contributes decisively to the promotion of medical activity, also contributing to the continuing medical education and ensuring the increase of the specialists' competence, thus improving the medical act and by aligning it with the highest standards at the international level.
